Overview of changes for UTherapy turned HealthAI

Why the project was chosen

The project was chosen due to its alignment with current world issues showing employers that I am future-thinking and a problem solver. It deals with issues around inaccessible healthcare focusing on the mental health sector. It discusses how AI can be used positively, a theme which is highly relevant. The design shows my current skillset including brand identity, content writing and website development.

Old Design

It contains three pages (Homepage/Utherapy Page), a diary page and an About Us Page. It contains a vertical navigation bar. (images in Appendix A)

The homepage contains information about Utherapy and some early designs for its features such as a diary page (that links) and buttons (with no links) for the other features.

New Design – Documented Changes

The new design focuses on creating a story and brand around UTherapy to create a context for the site. The design contains a homepage, UTherapy, history timeline, about us linking to environmental impact page.

Most of the original content has been changed although the colour palette is largely the same. Below is a list of the documented changes/additions:

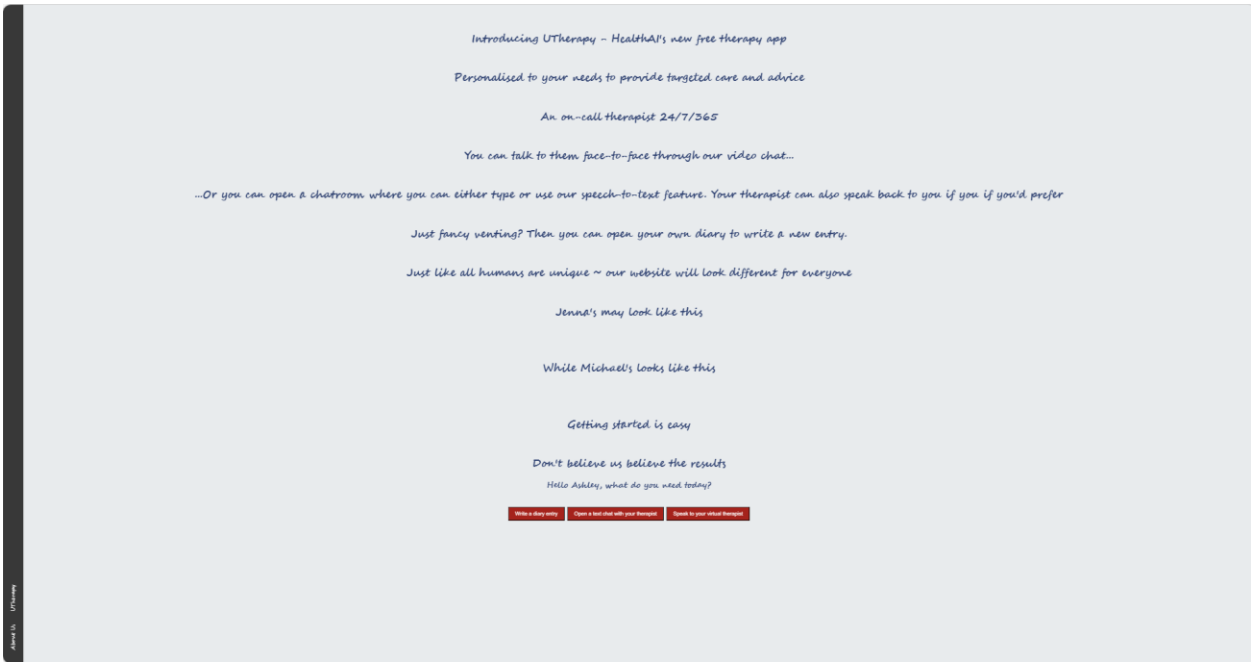
- Changes to navigation bar adding a home button/logo
- Creating a brand identity (logo and tagline)
- Fixing about us alignment issues
- Creating a history page that includes a timeline to show the brand history and why the design is so relevant in the hypothetical (but real-world factually grounded) context
- Creating a separate promotional page for UTherapy as trying to produce a site with fictional AI was proving difficult. The page shows the functionality of UTherapy and reviews from (fake) users
- Created an environmental impact page to address the current and future concerns around AI and its effect on the planet. The page aims to solidify the brand aims to destigmatise AI use.

Appendices

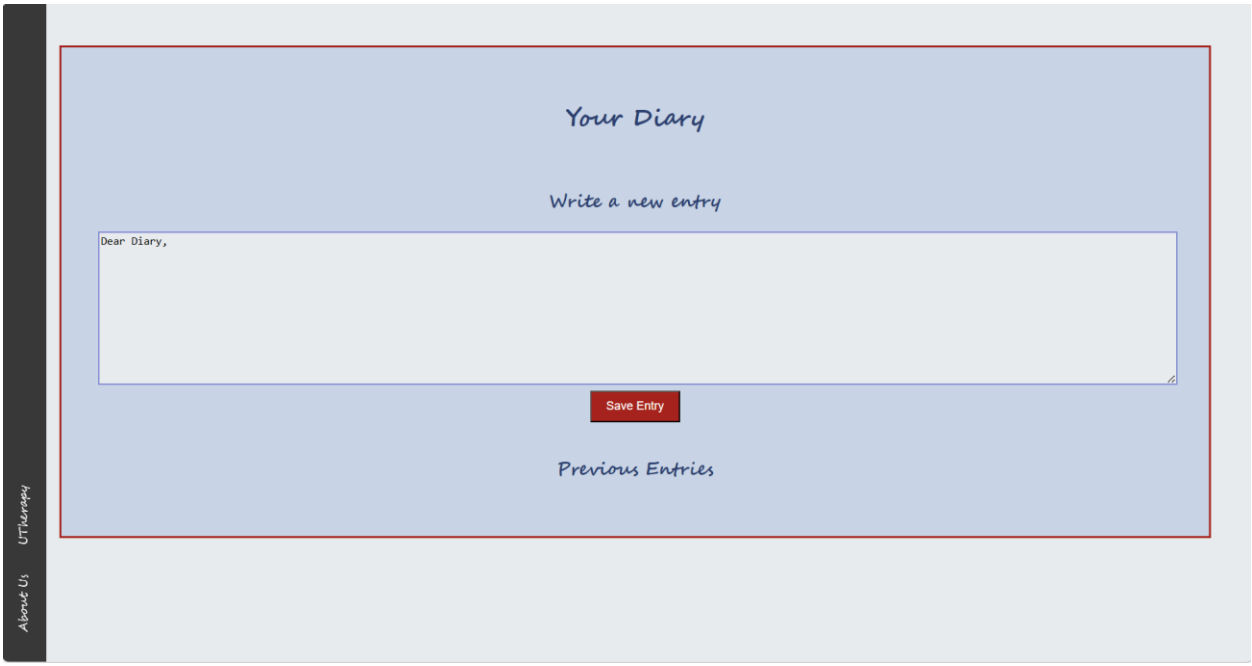
Appendix A: Old UTherapy design

About Us Page

UTherapy Page



Diary Entry Page



Your Diary
Write a new entry
Dear Diary,
Save Entry
Previous Entries
About Us
UTherapy